One Land, One Family, One Prosecco

On the hills of Valdobbiadene, declared a UNESCO World Heritage Site, where the vine draws its most beautiful domain, the church of Saint Gregory has watched over the San Gregorio estate's lands for centuries.

Here, everything begins with a deep respect for the land and for the passing of time.

San Gregorio is the connoisseur's secret. Where the great estates seek universal harmony, this family winery bets on one thing: the raw authenticity of its terroir.

Steep vineyards, hand harvesting, vine cultivation without chemical products every bottle tells the story of a slope, a season, a family.

The « Rive »: the pinnacle of Prosecco craftsmanship

The term « Rive » refers in Venetian dialect to steep-slope vineyards. These sheer parcels are the noblest expression of Prosecco Superiore limited yields, grapes of exceptional concentration, exclusively hand-harvested. San Gregorio excels in this category: its Rive di San Pietro di Barbozza cuvée is a benchmark of verticality and minerality.

Generation after generation, the family passes on this noble passion: respect for the land and for time, the love of wine as a constant heritage. Without chemical products, they tend their vines to offer the fruit of a majestic terroir.
